

HOW TO FIND A LITERARY AGENT

HOW TO FIND A LITERARY AGENT

1. Publisher's Weekly: A weekly magazine that details new deals from well known agents, along with other pertinent information about publishing in general.
2. Literary Marketplace: A book that includes lists of literary agents with their preferred genres, and often submission guidelines.
3. Publisher's Marketplace: A website with information about publishing and new deals.

Unicorn4writers@gmail.com unicornforwriters.com unicornwritersconference.com

4. Shaw's Guide to Writers Conferences: Online international guide to writers' conferences throughout the world.
5. Jeff Herman's Guide to Book Publishers, Editors, and Literary Agents 2013: Who They Are! What They Want! How to Win Them Over! (Jeff Herman's Guide to Book Publishers, Editors, & Literary Agents): An excellent and accessible resource.
6. Recommendations from Jan Kardys' list of agents at Unicorn Writers' Conference.
7. Acknowledgement pages in books which often mentioning the agent's name.
8. Recommendations from published authors (Book signings are excellent places to meet published authors)
9. Books in bookstores and libraries that are the same genre as your book; call the Contracts Department or Permission Department for that book's publisher and ask who the agent is for the book.

Unicornforwriters.com
unicorn4writers@gmail.com

Unicornwritersconference.com